

Janata Dal (Secular) Election 2013 Party Manifesto

My Appeal

Dear Voters of Karnataka,

My humble appeal is before you. As you are aware I am fighting for the cause of the poor and the downtrodden for the past 5 decades. While I am happy about the achievements and services rendered by Janata Dal (Secular) party, I realize that what has been done by our party is not enough and there is a lot more to be achieved. Janata Dal (Secular) has been fighting for equality and justice. We are seen in Karnataka as the true representatives of the agrarian and downtrodden communities. All this was possible as you have blessed our party candidates in the earlier elections.

You may ask us a question as what we propose to do in case we are voted to power in the ensuing election to Karnataka Legislative Assembly in 2013. We will give a “Clean and Transparent administration” free from corrupt practices. This apart, here is a summary of what we propose to achieve in various sectors of administration. I place before you, for your kind consideration, our party manifesto. Under the Indian constitution, the Indian States are expected to perform the role of Welfare state. Welfare means “Welfare of Everybody”. While some parts of Karnataka have witnessed some development over the last 50 years, these developments have had no effect on the lives of a large number of citizens. They continue to live in poverty. Our party is built on the foundations of “Equality and Justice” and the programme indicated in this manifesto reflects the same. We focus more on Welfare of our people, especially on those who are in distress and who need the helping hand of government.

Please consider the Manifesto that we have placed before you. To implement all these programmes we need your support. I request you give your valuable votes to Janata Dal (Secular) party candidates and give us an opportunity to serve you by forming our Government.

H.D.Devegowda

There is huge delay in payments causing farmers enormous problems on livelihoods (Some factories have not made payment since last year.
